The effect of xanthomonad (XcZL) infection on oxidative metabolism of cucumber (Cucumis sativus) leaves was examined. The effects of xanthomonad infection on the responses of peroxidase (POD), superoxide dismutase (SOD) and catalase (CAT) was detected using RT-PCR technique. The changes of superoxide radicals (O₂⁻), hydrogen peroxide (H₂O₂), malondialdehyde (MDA) content, activities of POD, SOD and CAT were detected. The results showed that the activities of POD, SOD and CAT increased with the progress of xanthomonad infection. During infection process, the peroxidase activity increased significantly, but the content of hydrogen peroxide, malondialdehyde decreased significantly. These results suggested that POD activity enhanced the concentration of H₂O₂, then excessive H₂O₂ produced by the POD played a key role in the activity of SOD and CAT. The reaction and balance of the two pairs of free radicals (O₂⁻ and H₂O₂) were controlled by the POD activity, then the content of malondialdehyde decreased obviously.
