Queensland Panthers The Queensland Panthers are the rugby league team of Queensland University of Technology (QUT), Australia. They are currently members of the Queensland Cup. The Panthers were known as the Ipswich Knights from 1992 until the name was changed to Queensland Panthers in 1998. History 1992–1996: Ipswich Knights In 1992, the Knights were introduced as a stand-alone side to the Ipswich Rugby League. After three seasons, the Knights won the IRL Shield. The following season they played in the Newcastle B League, finishing 3rd. The Knights were promoted to the Intrust Super Cup for the 1995 season and the following season finished last on the table. 1996–1998: Queensland Panthers In 1996 the Panthers side was relocated to Brisbane and renamed the Queensland Panthers, although in 1998 they returned to their original name, Queensland Knights. The Panthers played their first season in the Queensland Cup in 1998, finishing 7th. In 1999 the Panthers were unable to field a team, and in 2000 the side returned with a new sponsorship deal with Brisbane City Council. 2000–2003: Queensland Knights The Knights were in the Queensland Cup from 2000 to 2003. During this time they were considered by many to be one of the strongest teams in the competition. 2003–present: Queensland Panthers In 2003 the Panthers were renamed the Queensland Panthers and continued playing in the Queensland Cup. In 2008 they finished runner-up in the grand final and were awarded the Ron Massey Trophy for emerging players. Colours In 2008 the Panthers released new logo and uniform colours. The colours were navy blue, yellow and white with dark gold trim and white helmet decals.
