The formula is =IF(C2>=T2,D2,"") where C2 is the last date in column "Period" and T2 is the max date in column "Sales". The problem is that the value in column "Period" is saved as text while excel automatically converts the dates in the previous rows in the data table to dates. How do I have to write the formula to consider the above exception? A: The problem is that the value in column "Period" is saved as text while excel automatically converts the dates in the previous rows in the data table to dates. How do I have to write the formula to consider the above exception? Your formula is correct. If the date in C2 is greater than or equal to the date in T2 then the second part of your formula, the "" is returned. The "" will thus return an empty string and excel will not write that to the sheet. Supreme Court Strips Citizenship from Girl on Mom's Waiver In October 2012, Cecilia Flores was granted legal

My model has: attr_accessible :subject validates_presence_of :subject What I want to happen is that if subject has not been filled out, an alert appears on the form on the same page. I have not done validation before and I was looking at some ways to do this in rails 3, but I can't figure out how to do so. A: First, turn off the HTML generated by the form helper by using the :novalidate option (added in Rails 3.1). You can still use HTML5 validation techniques, just the helper will respect any required fields. In addition, try using remote: true to your submit_tag helper: The remote attribute will then post the form data to your Rails controller action even though the page is still on the current action. This will still correctly respect your form validation. Q: Using XAMPP installed via wamp installer I've downloaded the Xampp desktop installer and made the related modifications and 0cc13bf012
