So I have a line that looks like: 389248843 Q098065 which I want the output to be: 38924 I know if i set the variables: SET INPUT=389248843 SET OUTPUT=%INPUT:~0,3% Then I can just do: COPY %INPUT% %OUTPUT% But what if the line in the text file is something like this: 389248843 C002916 I can't quite figure out what I should do to get only the first three characters into the OUTPUT variable.

Features Key:

- An Epic Fantasy RPG with a Modern Theme
- A vast world full of adventure
- A Grand Battle Story with a Multilayered System
- Create your own character
- Engage in a vast world full of dangers
- An Online Multiplayer that Loosely Connects You with Others

The World of Elden Ring The Lands Between are the remains of the heartland of Elden, a once great nation. At the time of its downfall, the people of this heartland found a way to escape persecution, abominations and divine judgment by leaving the lands of this nation and traveling across the world. Along the way, they fused their national memories with other spirits, and created a magical power known as the Elden Ring. The Ring so far has only one holder, who is called the Angel of Purification. There are mysterious riddles such as a dwarf called the Sleeping Giant who keeps enemies at bay, and the Greaves, a legendary and powerful armor that returns to whoever wears it in the Lands Between. The Lands Between

In the Lands Between, you can also store and carry item combinations that you purchase in different places, including cities which are inhabited by kindly people. During this time, a noble-looking man who wields a huge sword is a common sight. He protects items and players, and inevitably becomes the target of thieves and barbarians. By playing the game, you slowly level up your character, and are able to acquire skills, items, and memories from in-game events that lead to raise your level. The number of memories increases as your level increases. Click here to check out the bulk deals and the news section! Store purchased item combinations can be associated with your items. The player who wears the combination will get additional item combinations and additional memories.

hybrid. Based on comments written on our forum about the first title it seems that many people didn't think that "Beyond" had a plot and is open to interpretation. We believe this title with a new cast, new setting and new gameplay will be the flagship title for "Beyond" We will be as honest as possible regarding the official title and plot of the second title as we do with the first title. From now on we will provide some official plot points during your exploration. The Story starts with the collision of three races with very different culture and art into one single world and this creates many difficulties for the characters, the first four characters are sent out to change all of this. You are a normal guy, a cop, and a medic and in a mission to fix the whole world, you embark on this crazy trip. There will be a range of game content, we do not know how many yet but you will be able to create your own character and challenge quests will be featured as well. Q: Encoding pathname for use in $output_path? I'm using the output image path to save an image to my file system. What is the best encoding I should use in this case? I have tried to use utf8_encode() but it breaks, and use pathinfo() to see what the path name is and try to replace the newlines and spaces with %c4 but then I find all sorts of encoded characters (...) and doesn't work at all. What should I use? I'm saving the images as png. If it matters, this is what I do with saving the image: if ($image_is_displayed_in_an_alpha_channel) { if ($image_is_saved_as_a_npp) { npp_imagedestroy($image); } else { imagepng($image); } } A: Nasuno, used by Drupal, does all kinds of encoding and splitting on domains. In your case try with `encode_path`. This is a completely independent app, so no dependency on Drupal at all. A: Use the URL (parsed by `pathinfo()`) to identify the file name and then use the `str_replace` function to change characters you don't like. Q: How to use `UIScrollView` I'm designing for iPad and started designing by creating IB view hierarchy for new app. In my app I have a view controller which holds a `UIScrollView` and some UI elements. My question is that, can I set two different x-values for the `UIScrollView` and add different content at these two x-values? Do I need to use IB to set this up? A: You use a `UIScrollView` to scroll through a container of views that are smaller than the screen. To scroll to a different x-value, you need to create a view that you set the bounds of (or its frame). Add that view as a subview of the UIScrollView. Then you update the contentOffset property of the scroll view to scroll to that view. One of the easiest things to start with is to create a 30x30 view

---
