Wed, 15 Oct 2019 04:30:00 +0000 and Fantasy Roleplay
Expands with the Good Elf

By Andrew Banks, April 15, 2019

Take a deep breath Warhammer and Fantasy Roleplayer fans -
The Suffering Index updates are finally here!

This update brings us to a new section of gameplay, called the Good Elf. This section of gameplay is driven by introducing new Player Characters and features an all-new play-style. You'll explore towns and kill monsters, and there are new monster types available to kill. This is a place you can feel excited about, and we want everyone to feel warm and fuzzy about the place. All of this has been designed to bring a happy place and reduce the bad feelings brought on by the Bad Elf section of the game.

Since the launch of WFRPG, we've been developing new Features and adding systems to the game. Before we were capturing Characters with character creation as we felt this gave the game a strong identity in contrast to other games. However, our game didn't feel full because there are so many bad guys around, so we added a new system called 'The Bad

Elf'. This focuses on killing hordes of enemies, and levelling up as you progress.

More recently, we've had an internal discussion around what we define as the community and the parts that make them feel happy or sad. As many of you reading will be aware, the Summer sales are an important time for us as our Rulebook and Storyline are updated. This process reveals that we are not happy with the experience a lot of our current Players have. The assumption is that as they are paying monthly subscription, they expect to feel happy and have fun when their subscription is ending
