TS Marketplace works on the premise that games have many great ideas and features that are shared. Any user can jump into any game project and add ideas, art and content to the game, from which a gamemaking community can be built. Users can then share their creations with each other via in-game email and download links for PC, Mac and Linux. Registered users can download and update any of the projects via the TS Marketplace website. TS Marketplace is free for end users to use and download projects, and a successful create can be monetised via in-game advertising. Users of TS Marketplace can become owners of projects and can choose to monetize projects, either by generating income themselves, or by selling projects to other users. TS Marketplace has become a community of over 600 thousand registered users, of which over 100 thousand have a portfolio of projects on the website. In-game advertising has also become a significant source of income for owners of TS Marketplace projects. In total, TS Marketplace generates over $75 million a year in sales. Leder Panzer is a PC game in the third person shooter genre with a primary focus on modern warfare, warfare and destruction. Play alone or with friends in free-for-all or other modes and take on the enemy in seven different maps on eight different terrains. That means that you can play with a friend or an opponent over the internet. Or you can play against bots and join different game modes like conquest or deathmatch on the various maps on all terrains. Also, play with different classes like tank infantry, artillery, assault tank, heavy tank, sniper, hovercraft etc. and take on missions in six different game modes. Leder Panzer features a huge arsenal of weapons, over 10 models per weapon. If you have not seen such a variety in a shooter before, you will be amazed! Your tank features a realistic physics engine. Move around like you would in real life and drive as you would in real life. Take the enemy out with superior firepower in a realistic battlefield environment. Don't hesitate to use your weapons to their full potential as you would in a real battle. With Leder Panzer you can play using the mouse to move, aim and fire your weapon and combine this with a grenade launcher or other weapons. Also, you will see headless tank models instead of turrets that you can use to turn and aim. - Infantry Combat Missions - War Campaign Maps - Visualization in 3D - Strategical decision-making - Online Multiplayer - Single Player Survival Mode - Mission EditorMembers of the Progressive Conservative party in the Ontario Legislature have voted to condemn the actions of the provincial government on Tuesday, following Premier Doug Ford's decision to cut off social assistance to thousands of low-income people. At a meeting of PC MLAs Wednesday morning, several said they felt there was no question that the Ford government was trying to punish those in need. In his New Year's Day speech to the Progressive Conservative party's biennial convention, Ford said he decided to cut off social assistance to about 5,000 people who had not complied with Ontario Works rules for two years and were on waiting lists. The legislation set to come into effect Jan. 22 would also bar people from receiving income support for six months and raise the Ontario Works waiting list from one year to three. In a video posted to Facebook following the announcement, PC Party Leader Patrick Brown said he was proud of his party for standing up for those on social assistance. "The first thing that people want to do is to push the vulnerable people to the side and to hit the wealthy," said Brown. "These are the kind of steps we want to avoid." The legislation is designed to reduce the annual caseload of Ontario Works by half — from about 50,000 to 25,000 — in order to free up cash and encourage more people to seek work. But the Progressive Conservatives appear to have been reluctant to criticize the premier's move. MLA Markham-Stouffville Percy Hatfield — who was an election co-chair for the Progressive Conservatives and was one of only two Progressive Conservatives to vote against the previous PC government on Bill 44 in December — was not present for Wednesday's vote. 'A real treat' to see the support for this from his party, PC MPP Garth Turner told CBC News on Wednesday. Garth Turner, a Progressive Conservative MPP for Simcoe North, congratulated the Progressive Conservatives for their unity and support for the budget. (CBC) He said he was "thrilled" to see the Conservative caucus come together. "In the last year of the government it has been a real treat to see so much support and really strong unity in this caucus," he said.

ov (SED) Fliponov or Flipponov () is a village in the Svietlahorsky District of the Chuvash Republic, Russia, located east of Sabirovo and south-east of Svietlahorsk. It has a population of 4,935 (as of 1 January 2013). History In 1947, Upper Volga Germans began to settle the areas neighbouring Salsk and Sabirovo. Soon the people from Dorisk, former German village, moved to the settlements in the area of Salsk district, or kept going to villages in the Kamenka area. Originally, the village was called Flipponov, after Florent von Flippon, a Prussian general who was brought to France as a hostage in 1708. Next to the village name, the locals built a tower from the cement blocks set. Sichin's farm was one of the oldest and largest in the village, with of land. Sichin was traveling the West as a woodcutter, and his wife sold out to German settlement. Her brother did not come with his family, as the Germans forbade them to visit the new neighbors. However, Sichin eventually bought not only his brother's cousin's family, but also the adjoining farm lands from his cousin and also a plot of land in the big woods. It was called "Young Farmer St. Patricks" ("Young Farmer 'Godfather. A. E."), and around it there was a small town. The relatives of the original Sichin arrived from Svietlahorsk around the second half of the 20th century and settled in the area of the old Sichin's farm. Together they established a cheese factory that employed many Chuvash people from the village of Sichin. As the demand for cheese in the neighboring city Oktyabrsk grew, the locals began to specialize on foreign cheese, prepared by a group of citizens from Sabirovo, that was called Chuvskij perevsy (Chuvskij punks). During the years of the Great Patriotic War, Sabirovo was under constant shelling by the enemy. Flipponov and young Shoboshevich (Svietlakhorsk) were among the first settlements to be liberated by the Russian army. The Germans offered the local people an evasive truce –
