Battle Chess 4000 is a 3D chess game where everything is animated: the boards, the pieces, the moves, the pieces' animation, the sounds, the graphics, the game. The whole process of creating the animations was done using state-of-the-art animation software. You can have the pieces frozen in action, go to show how they move the chess pieces, even have the pieces on a 3D chess board and the whole game is recorded using 3D cameras. The game consists of a 2D board which the pieces animate on, a 3D board which controls the animation of the pieces and a round-the-clock motion capture chess clock. The game is also a teaching tool. It has a library of over 300,000 opening moves that it can learn from and a built-in artificial intelligence engine that can handle any level of chess player. You can play the game by yourself, by playing against the AI or the computer can play in 3 different styles: let it play itself, let it play a fixed set of moves and let it play the game against you on different difficulty levels. "For real hip hop, you can't go wrong with Action Bronson." - 8/10 Album Review "The true master of the music industry is back. Action Bronson presents his 'Turning Point' mixtape. This tape is one of the best mixtapes of the year. His rhymes are fire on every song he drops. It makes me want to write a song and rap over this tape. I feel like I'm listening to my favorite songs by some of my favorite artists." - 8/10 Album Review Developer: Gameloft "If you're looking for a casual game that involves time management then this is the game for you. On the positive side it's free to play with no hidden in-game purchases." - 5/10 Review Gameplay 6.5 Poltergeist: Clear the Stairs: "This game is an absolute joy to play. It is simple, it is fun and it is addicting. The graphics are absolutely beautiful and the sound effects are spot on. The game is well-made and it feels like a game from the future, but it is refreshing to see a game that hasn't dumbed itself down like so many other games have. I would like to see a sequel in which the evil ghost child is raised and doesn't come back." - 8.5/10 Gameplay 7.5 Candy Crush: Cookie Shop "Is there a better game to spend time than Candy Crush? Do you have any friends? Did you watch that movie? Wow, there is Candy Crush. There is Candy Crush." - 4.5/10 Review Gameplay 9 Spore: Ultimate Evolvment: "Finally a game that doesn't make you feel like a total moron. This game is a blast to play. There is a wonderful sense of humor to it that helps make it much more fun than the last game in the series." - 8.5/10 Review Gameplay 9 Castle Clues 2: "If you love the Castle Clues franchise and the original, you're going to love this game. This game has just as much fun as the first." - 8/10 Review Gameplay 10 Strike Castle Clash: "This game is a fun. Even though it's iOS, it's not like it was crammed into a Facebook app and made

(song) "Baby Racer" is a song by R&B singer-songwriter Lenny Kravitz. It was released as the lead single on the soundtrack from the film Eddie and the Cruisers, on September 20, 1986 by Casablanca Records. "Baby Racer" was Kravitz's third single to top the Billboard R&B Singles. It was also his second number-one on the Billboard Hot 100, becoming Kravitz's sole number-one hit on the chart. The song was also a number-one single on the Adult Contemporary chart. "Baby Racer" was nominated for the Grammy Award for Best R&B Song but lost to Don Henley's "The Boys of Summer". The music video for "Baby Racer" was filmed at Paramount Studios in Los Angeles, California. The video is set at a car race at the Full Throttle Raceway, and features footage of the film while one racer crashes in front of the crowd. On September 30, 2015, The Rock and Roll Hall of Fame inducted "Baby Racer" into their 500 Songs That Shaped Rock and Roll. Background According to Kravitz, the song was originally written as a gospel song for his then-wife and now-wife Elsa, and was performed for them at the Metropolitan Studio Church. He spent most of the song in a church choir robe. Kravitz wrote the song in 1977, when he was 13 years old, on a songwriting pseudonym, "Clever Jimmy Brown", while imagining what he would say to his then girlfriend Becky at her church. The song was then played on a radio station in his hometown. Clea Butler, Kravitz's then wife, explained the song's original meaning on her autobiography: "One of the biggest jobs he [Lenny] ever got was, he found us a church and made me lead the choir there. It was just the band playing and the pastor, and it was fabulous. It was so nice, and Lenny even went to Sunday school. I could talk to him about anything. That was our escape." In a 1980 interview with Rolling Stone, the pianist performed the melody of the song at the end of a song he had been working on, later explaining his inspiration for the song: "You know those black and white checkerboard floors in a lot of the funeral homes? I overheard somebody say he drove a '97 Fleetwood Brougham around there. One

Scottish government announces new university admissions policy A wave of uncertainty swept across Scotland as the Scottish government announced a new university admissions policy yesterday. After a period of consultation and a government review, the new policy will see the university admissions pass cut from the previous 60% to 50% with an additional entry for 'economically advantaged' students. As soon as the new deadline to submit applications for September 2014 of September 2 this year, students will find themselves under a lot of pressure as many universities have already started admitting students for September 2014 The new admission process will be, according to the Minister for Universities and Colleges: "more workable for students and families than the current system." "an opportunity for increased investment in higher education, and opportunities for greater diversity." "an opportunity to increase access to higher education." "a means to secure enhanced financial returns for the taxpayer." "These objectives fit well with Scotland
