What's new:

ula A Spell for Good is a way that you can give to others. The 4 races (Dragon, Elf, Human and Orc) come with unique spells to help you out. Dragon: Flame Armours and Cannon Elf: Teleport, Ritual of Service Human: Focus Orc: Howling Wind, Thunder Punt Each one of these spells will be in a different stat point level. These stats are going to be used to level up a Spell, rather than leveling up a Character. This spell power is relative to your level, so once you reach a certain point, all of your spells of the same level are going to be more powerful. This makes it much easier to upgrade a spell you've already leveled up, than it is to level up one you've never leveled before. If you've leveled all of your spells before the end of the game, you will enter the New Game Plus mode with 12,000 power points to work with. The four race spells are all based around four particular things: Cannon: A fully upgraded cannon is one of the most powerful ways to use good magic in battle. Teleport: Sorcerers can act as defense for your group by teleporting to another place for attack or to escape. Teleport can also be used as a powerful escape tool with a group near death Focus: Increases your spell power by 100 points. This can be active for the whole group, though it should always be deactivated before actually battling Howling Wind: Increases your damage done by 20%. This one is reserved for face to face PvP, an aggressive spell As for the common spells, you can mostly choose spells from any of the races. However, Dragon's spells require a 7-9 point crafted Dragonwood, Orcs require a 2-3 point clay or lumber as a pre-requisite, as well as a shaped item, Elves require a shaped item, and Humans require a Dragonwood shaped item. Astral Excavation: If you type the astral word on a shaped item, it will be excavated. You can choose a shape from the other three races (D for Dragon, D for Dragonwood, C for Clay and L for Lumber). Despite: Allows you to prevent units from attacking your other units for three turns. This only works if two of your units are within a range of 10 squares, and your opponent is at 10 squares or more away from your main units.
