Physico-chemical characteristics and organoleptic evaluation of saffron (Crocus sativus L.) from two cultivation areas in Iran. The chemical composition of Iranian saffron was determined. The effects of three different parts of the plant on sensory characteristics and overall acceptability were evaluated using a modified official method. Particular regard was given to the determination of total essential oil content and total carotenoid content. The results showed significant differences between samples of different origin and different parts of the plant. The qualitative and quantitative differences of samples were found to be fairly good in organoleptic terms, with the exception of the roots. The amount of the total essential oil (4.0%-4.5%) of Iranian saffron samples did not differ significantly from those of other Iranian saffron samples. Q: Quaternion Rotation with 3D matrices I have an input of quaternions, the rotate function in opengl and linear algebra. I have no problem rotation about axis Y will mess up the quaternion. I have attached a picture of what I am doing. This is the vertex shader I am using in vec2
