The governing body of figure skating, the International Skating Union, said Hanyu will not compete because of his illness. The 19-year-old was competing as a member of Japan’s Olympic team in January at the Grand Prix Final, which runs until Jan. 6. Hanyu has won the world junior title three times and the world junior title four times. He’s also won a record 15 Grand Prix events, putting him among the world’s best skaters. Japan will have its fourth figure skating team at the Olympics, but the first time it has brought a man. The original team was led by two women. Now it consists of two men, two women and a 17-year-old boy.Q: Is it possible to have power to my hot tub outside? My hot tub is
