
Our ultimate goal with super agent: drunk kent was to create a boardgame experience that had a really loose set of rules, yet no rules at all; going to the same town three times would allow you to roll the same stunts off or just flip the board over to move three spaces (we didn't record that this would allow you to play more towns... or we don't know yet). The rules are very self-explanatory, on purpose,

The most vicious of all of Kent's nemeses - he'll kill you with only his bare hands. His strength lies in his lazy eye, which doesn't give him a clear view of what's in his way. No matter where you move it will slowly drift to the left and right, effectively blinding you and playing into his hands. It can occasionally pass to the opposite side as well, and this is where your aim and defence become crucial. Avoid his attacks while countering his eye's, and try to take him down before he takes you down. About the Game Dungeon Wizards: If you already know the original Dungeon Wizards, you will feel right at home. If you are new to the series, then welcome aboard! In a world where wizards use magic to fight and defeat their foes, you get to do pretty much the same - attack with the magic tiles, collect coins and runes to strengthen your spells, and help others in the fight. However, this time it is you who is facing off against an extremely deadly nemesis, so a lot is at stake. Will you survive, or will you perish? Game modes: Team Death Match Capture The Flag Destruction Deathmatch Rainbow Moon Adventure opens in the world of Gen II, a tale that follows the development of the second generation of characters on the planet Terra Nova. Soon after the events of Gen I: Origins, two young Terran men - Primus and Tsubo - discover a technological ruin underneath the ruins of ancient Rome. Upon uncovering this long-lost relic, they are immediately transported to the Ancient Roman era and tasked with restoring the lost technologies in order to sustain life on the planet. As they embark on their journey, they meet Tsubo's best friend - the Elphaba, a purple-draped fairy from the fairy race of Ness. The three friends quickly develop a bond as they journey through the ruins, and Primus falls in love with Tsubo's sister - Princess Luna. As Primus and Luna grow closer, their romantic feelings are threatened by the incessant actions of Oz, an evil wizard who has captured Luna's father and intends to use the power of the Lightbringer to enslave the entire planet. In order to defeat Oz and reclaim Luna's freedom, Primus and Tsubo must unite with the other fairy races, the Elphaba, Tin, and Toad, in order to foil his evil plan. Rainbow Moon Adventure is a side-scrolling platformer that takes place in a side scrolling landscape and tells the story of the legendary Star of Light - the White Star - through multiple stages, boss battles and collectible items. The game features new gameplay mechanics including:

- Balance system: Aligning the star's rotation to the axis to reach the portal to the next level.
- Master mode: Star mode + new gameplay mechanics.

Star of Light, who was lost in the ancient night of the planet Esper, has now awakened again. The Star of Light possesses the power of the unknown, and when it roars its way through the dark

What's new in Super Agent: Drunk Kent:

(R in US) Summary: Kent Taylor--thirty-something undergraduate--in the middle of a typical run of the mill binge that follows a three-day drinking binge, hears a man with a loud Korean accent scream "NEED MORE BEER!" Disengaging from a security camera surveillance apparatus, Kent slides the case holding the .357 Magnum round across a table, toward the suspect, who appears immobile, backed up against a wall. The suspect realises that, if Kent or the three policemen who have cornered him have split their time dividing their attention between him and the table, and he has managed to get to his feet and reach Kent, he has a better chance of getting away than if he were sitting down. Kent must decide whether or not, in the five seconds of heightened awareness the bullet would leave the gun in the hands of the suspect, he will either play it safe and miss the chance to put a shot in the suspect's head, or nail the guy, in which case the suspect might very well be in a state of 'permanent shock' and possibly harm himself while in a state of confusion, and won't be able to escape the policemen. He aims between the eyes of the suspect and fires. The suspect falls over dead. The man who proposed the original beamer as a way of getting Drunk to make the effort of hauling groceries up three flights of stairs without a railing, who himself now has a bullet in his body, tells Kent: "You realize what just happened? That gun was never off safety. [A capital] Do you know what's next? The daisywheel on that thing kicks out the spent casing. [Kent's course of study via his life choices has definitely been anomalous, but this is not a law-school scenario--I imagine that when the bullet went next through the body of the teetotaler in the store, his brain never even registered the discharge that went by it. At the cost of idle speculation, consider what the outcome might have been if another gun had been found on the suspect and he had time to grab it, aim it and shoot Kent--the conclusion, of course, would be an entirely different story. I can't help wondering what next would have happened if the guy had pulled out a pair of teeth that he had swallowed. Or a bullet. Or the four wooden cubes of a city block. Is it possible that he and Kent would have gone
