Century is a multiplayer arena fighter that puts a unique spin on the genre, allowing 20 man teams to fight each other in four different game modes including classic combat, knockout, quest and siege. Century: Age of Ashes: Century: Age of Ashes is a game that has the benefit of sharing some great gameplay ideas from other genres, yet also manages to use enough of its own twists to feel like its own thing and carve out its own lane. There are tons of concepts that put Century in a very unique place, and we wanted to see if we can make this a long term game! In an attempt to embrace the changes, we wanted to improve on the current balance of the universe. To this end, we created a new metagame that is heavily focused on the mechanics and style of the game. As a result, we changed the meta of the game so that characters are as successful as the metagame allows them to be. We added a depth of customization to the game as well, giving players tons of options. At the same time, we updated the art, animations and many other aspects of the game to remove the 70s aesthetic. We aimed to make the game look more modern, representing a more open-ended future for the players. Several of the maps we've designed have specific goals in mind to explore the flexibility and depth of the game. Conquest is a map that follows the story of a conflict that has been waging for more than a century. The map has been designed around these events, and will have events triggered as the story progresses. Besides the main story, we have included various smaller maps as side content. Q: What is Century: Age of Ashes, and what sets it apart from other fighters like Tekken, Street Fighter, Soul Calibur etc? A: Century: Age of Ashes is a multiplayer arena fighter that brings a lot of modern design ideas to fight games. In Century, these ideas give the game the depth and nuances that a fighter needs. In terms of design, Century seems to be a hybrid of the design philosophies of a few games. We wanted the game to be easy to pick up and play, and we also wanted to make a game that looked good and had complex and deep gameplay. We wanted the game to draw more from the action games (newer Street Fighter and Tekken series). The most noticeable difference, and the first thing that people will notice when they pick up Century is that the game c9d1549cdd

What's new in Faircroft's Antiques: The Mountaineer's Legacy:

Number of bids: 3 Location: Pacific Northwest USA Date posted: 2013-01-01 Bid Type: Instant Closing Date: 13 Jan 2013 Bid Price: $595.00 This add-on livery is inspired from the vintage era of railroading in the Pacific Northwest USA. This was my first add-on paint job and it was accomplished entirely by me. It took 6 man-hours to paint. I just wanted a little something different on my own locomotive and I'm not a huge fan of the current "glowing-engine" era. This livery was partially a homage to my grandfather who was on his route for 30 years with the Great Northern Railway. The base colours that I used were: Blue - Royal Blue, Orange - Fiery Red, Yellow - Hot Yellow, Gray - Lone Star Gray, Red - Fiery Red, Medium Brown - Butter Brown Overview: I received 4 of the 6 bid numbers from Conestoga. The quality of the livery was incredibly smooth and one after another the photos came in and I was reviewing them online waiting for the bids to close. I told Conestoga that I would wait to review until the last bid before the deadline. Within a few minutes Conestoga went from 6 bids to 3 bids. I had stumbled across an add-on "7" from a great group who run the award-winning Steam Locomotives of the PNW Mod. They called it "Pacific Rocks" and it was painted by Roger Bittner. Within 90 minutes I had lost one of the remaining 3 bids and then they went silent for a few hours. I started to worry when I received another text from Conestoga asking if I had received a bid. "I replied with a "no" and then received another text requesting another bid number - so I sent it again." I was sitting for a couple hours without getting a response. I lost count of the minute that I sat in my website chair waiting for a response. I got a text a few hours later and I was elated. "congratulations, Railfan Add-On Prodigy!" Then I lost my only remaining bid. So my add-on painted locomotive is a "Pilot McNabs" from Ralph's Wild West Pass. That'

On March 3rd 1961, one of the largest and most devastating fires in history, started at the Empire State Building. 5 months later, on August 6th 1962, a fire in London, England, also started at the Empire State Building. They weren't the only ones looking to take advantage of the newly bankrupted tower. It was now widely accepted that, due to New York's vast use of cheap, flammable materials in the construction of the Empire State Building, fires would continue to occur in the building. Then, on May 18th 1964, workers found a small incendiary device inside the building's main elevator shaft. This plot - the reason why the building burned and why you play this game - was the beginning of a 5 year long $2 billion conspiracy to create a long lasting, world-wide panic that would benefit the business world. In 1964, corporations of all sizes and departments of business started to use the Empire State Building as a panic room - creating complexes of secret rooms within the complex in order to shield certain keys to important documents. Now, over 50 years later, you play the role of an American Farmer, an ordinary, everyday guy, and in this case, a Farmer, a man who lives off of the land and buys and sells goods. As a Farmer you must live your life in two realms. On one hand you must visit your town, buy goods, sell goods and then move onto the next town. On the other hand you must also visit the secret Panic Room of the Empire State Building in New York, where you try to find and protect the key to the secrets hidden within and avoid the hazards and traps that threaten your life. An ordinary game of buying and selling that turns into a unique experience! Key Features: The Mechanics: Each player has a character which they control via the use of the D-pad or a mouse. You move around a 3D gaming world and must buy, sell and move on to the next town. You manage your money in a game of buying and selling, avoid some hazards along the way. You will start your journey with only $5 to buy anything, but with time and patience, you can turn your small start into a fortune. To move to the next town, you must either ask people to trade with you, or sell your goods in your current town. Players can increase the size of their community by purchasing more houses, raising the prices of goods and making the town more agreeable. You
