together once more and at the epicenter of this effort is a facility that most would call an impenetrable fortress: the Qvisc, the nexus of all UN power. Originally built as the massive and secure headquarters of the Quincy State Bank and Trust, the vast Qvisc facility was designed to keep no one out. It's an impregnable facility - the proverbial spaceship-sized SUCKOORN that only an apprentice and worthies are ever invited into. It contains several separate strategic task forces, each of which has its own separate command system to keep things running smoothly. Founded when the Vermilion League was a budding and rapidly growing power, the Qvisc has at its core one of UN's most infamous adversaries: the incendiaries. When their ancient known weakness was discovered, the UN forged a project team, the Project Spring Group, to perform a deep exploration and investigation. When this finished, the UN declared the find deep scientific secrets, so the Qvisc was created. It sits somewhere between a UN force base and a science facility in a sense that its offensive counterpart is basically an extension of a particular branch of science. It remains the home of the incendiaries, however. And the leaders of this once-rare and secretive sect of UE scientists, the Knights of Tanesh, are making this a main base of operations. The project knights had been busily building their own labs, developing new science, researching and defending against incendiaries since their inception. With their new HQ has left them vulnerable to the people who use them
