FIFA 22 will be available worldwide on Xbox One, PS4, PC, Xbox 360 and PS3 from September 27 in North America and Europe. Electronic Arts recently released a new trailer for the game. Click on the banner below to view the full article. And, if all of that is true, or even half of it, then the Iranian leadership is really smart. Because the president's remarks — in which he claimed the Iranian leaders were responsible for the death of American sailors and the recent attacks on U.S. oil tankers in the Persian Gulf — came on the heels of two attacks, one on Saudi Arabian and another on the United Arab Emirates' Fifth Fleet, that took place on U.S. soil and that were likely carried out by "Iran-backed" elements. AD AD A few days earlier, U.S. officials said they believed Iran was behind the attack on Saudi oil infrastructure. Iran is telling an obvious lie. Here's the lie: Iranian leaders claim to be independent actors. But they have an economic interest in the continuation of the status quo. Because the status quo is to prevent the United States from policing the Strait of Hormuz and to keep the United States from threatening Iranian oil interests. To prevent these actions, Iranian leaders are obviously willing to lie about their foreign policy. AD Because the United States, like every other nation, faces tradeoffs between military and civilian priorities, when faced with security considerations. The United States has a vested interest in limiting Iranian military capabilities. It is naturally in our interest that we do not conduct military activities that we cannot win, and that we have some credible way to win our military conflicts. AD The United States has an interest in limiting Iran's oil interests. In other words, the United States has to balance and prioritize these interests, and when strategic concerns dictate, one of our interests must be put aside, even if that means sharing a piece of the natural resources that we need. And one of those considerations is our national security interest in reducing Iranian military capabilities. AD Is there a way for us to untangle and circumvent these considerations, to force one consideration to outweigh the other? One possible way to do this would be to criminalize all of Iran's interactions with foreign companies. This would have a fourfold effect:
