single vehicle: upon starting the simulation, you select the location for a single vehicle. a single vehicle is set up with a personalized driver and can have a personal route. this simulation does not follow other vehicles. after starting a simulation, the vehicle is set on a route for a desired amount of time. the simulation is stopped, and the vehicle's results are automatically printed. the program can simulate your driving and even your route. this includes weaving in and out of traffic and stop-and-go traffic to show the effect on your driving simulation. once you initiate a simulation, up to date road and traffic data on all roadways and streets within your area is downloaded to the system. the data includes the location of traffic lights, stop signs and other infrastructure along your route. you can specify different vehicles and drivers. drivers can even be a combination of your vehicle and a 4 wheeler. the program can also track the position of pedestrians if you wish to simulate your car avoiding them. if you're stuck in an intersection, the program can simulate your results so you see the maximum time you can spend in an intersection. the same thing is true if you're stuck at a traffic light. the program can simulate the time the light turns green and orange. the simulation records information like traffic light speed and green time, so you can see how long you'll take to exit the intersection. a simulation can be defined as any period in which a simulated vehicle has not changed roadways. a realistic simulation will track several vehicles and follow the group as a unit. the simulation may simulate a route you already follow as well as another route around your neighborhood.
