anyways, i hope you all enjoy all the new features, fixes and updates! i'm sure with a game with over a million hours of playtime you can think of some other cool features that we might add in the future. hey everyone! it's been a while since i've written a death road to canada update. i'm incredibly busy, busy, busy, but will try my best to make an update every month, especially for the launch of each of the three major updates. today we are announcing scenarios and horoscopes for the september 2017 update! inventions are a big part of the upcoming updates, so i'd like to take this chance to give you an update on some of the technologies we have planned. first, we have added a "portable" teleportation generator. transporters, also known as carriers, are several inches tall and weigh slightly more than they would weigh if they didn't have a long, thin robot body. the transporter can be programmed to carry a small robot body or a passenger, or you can use a communicator to call up your automated platform directly. each transporter will carry up to four people. the transporter will also be the source of special weapons, which is one of the three new game mechanics we are introducing with the update. a special weapon is an item that can shoot two types of projectiles at once. for example, you could get a launcher with enough ammunition for one shot of ammunition to fire two rockets at once. another special weapon might be a machine gun that can fire in six directions. right now we are in "early development" mode for warheads, but we will be using many of the same technology that is now used for inventions to develop the new mechanic. in the future, warheads will be used to create giant death balls that you can fire from portals and drop down on unsuspecting crowds of walkers or humans. players will use turrets to fire lasers from these balls.
